Works By Emerging Artists On Display at NJMC Flyway Gallery in August and September

LYNDHURST, N.J. – Works in several mediums by new and emerging artists will be on display at the New Jersey Meadowlands Commission’s (NJMC) Flyway Gallery in DeKorte Park during the months of August and September. The exhibit, “Emerging Artists: Now and New,” is presented by the Bergen Museum of Art & Science and runs from Monday, Aug. 6, to Friday, Sept. 28.

A reception for the artists with music provided by the New Horizon Symphony Chamber String Trio is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 18, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. For more information, including the ticket cost for the reception, visit www.thebergenmuseum.com. The show includes 40 abstract paintings, oil works, acrylics, mixed media and sculptures.

“The NJMC is pleased to spotlight up-and-coming artists,” said Marcia Karrow, Executive Director of the NJMC. “The impressive variety of media on display offers something for everyone. The Commission encourages the public to stop by the Flyway Gallery and enjoy this exhibit over the next two months.”

The Flyway Gallery is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, excluding holidays. DeKorte Park is an urban oasis encompassing one-square-mile of wetlands, water views and nature trails. The park is a great place for bird watching and enjoying nature.

Directions to DeKorte Park are available in the “About Us” section of the NJMC’s website, at www.njmeadowlands.gov, or by calling (201) 777-2431.
