NJMC Senior Plan Examiner Named New Jersey Building Inspector of the Year

LYNDHURST, N.J. – New Jersey Meadowlands Commission (NJMC) Senior Plan Examiner and Building Sub-Code Official Larry Scorzelli has been named Building Inspector of the Year by the Building Officials Association of New Jersey. Scorzelli, an NJMC veteran of 10 years, was recognized for his professionalism and dedication to the field.

“Building inspectors perform a critical job in ensuring that homes and businesses are safe for residents and employees,” said Marcia Karrow, Executive Director of the NJMC. “Larry is an exemplary inspector and we commend him on this well-deserved honor.”

In addition to his work at the NJMC, Scorzelli is the Borough of Ho-Ho-Kus Construction Official, Zoning and Property Maintenance Officer, Building Inspector, Fire Subcode Official, Fire Official and Plumbing Inspector. He also trains new building department employees. Scorzelli has worked for many municipalities and government agencies throughout his nearly 20-year career and holds more than a dozen professional licenses and International Code Council Certifications.

A Waldwick resident, Scorzelli has been a member of the Borough’s Volunteer Fire Department for nearly 30 years.
